

Way Back When ... People, Places and Events

Contributed stories about the early days of settlement in northern Tasmania

This book brings together over 230 original stories of People, Places and Events of northern Tasmania, from 75 individual authors.

They were originally published as a weekly series in The Examiner newspaper between 2004 and 2008 in a collaboration of the three Tamar Valley historical societies, to commemorate the 2004 Bicentenary of European settlement in northern Van Diemen's Land.

The stories have been strategically arranged to present a logical, cohesive picture of the early settlement that began in the Tamar Valley and gradually spread across the north of the island.

For the professional, amateur or family historian, this is an essential addition to your library, but anyone who enjoys an entertaining read will also find something of interest.
