GENERAL REMARKS

Samuel Donnelly Surgeon Superintendent

Dated at Hobart Town 17th April 1850]

On the 7th 8th and 13th December 1849, 207 Female Convicts and 26 Children of Convicts, were embark^d on board the Ship St Vincent at Woolwich from Millbank Penitentiary. The whole of the Prisoners appeared to be in a healthy condition with the exception of two, viz = Marg^t Haynes æt. 45, and Cath. Collins æt. 50. The former complained of pain and stiffness in right knee, the latter was carried on board from the Steamer, being unable to walk according to her own statement from weakness of lower extremities. In a note received from the resident Surgeon of Millbank Prison, he stated that both these women were malingerers and that it was his opinion as well as Dr Balye that neither of them labored under any disease. The Prisoner Collins suffered from Hysteric fits for a few weeks after embarkation, but during the remainder of the voyage she enjoyed good health.

The Prisoner Haynes soon recovered the use of her right knee joint with the use of stimulating liniments etc. On the 19th December the Ship sailed from the Downs for Van Diemen's Land and anchored off Hobart Town on the 4th April 1850, without touching at any intermediate Port on the Passage. On arrival there was only one person on the Sick List and that one convalescent after an attack of Rheumatism. The Prisoners enjoyed excellent health during the whole voyage with the exception of the two that died.

The measures adopted and to which I consider may be attributed their continuing healthy during so long a voyage, was great attention to cleanliness, ventilation and Fumigation. with respect to Fumigation I cannot speak too favourably of the Solution of Chloride of Zinc. I had daily opportunities of testing its effect as a Deodorizing agent. There were only two Water Closets for 217 women and 26 children (and these of limited? dimensions), consequently the odour emanating from them at times was extremely offensive even after they were thoroughly washed down every morning, so much so that the Prisoners occupying the Berths on each side of the Ladder leading to the Water Closets were constantly affected with headache until the offensive odour arising from them was removed by the Solution of the Chloride of Zinc poured down them. The effluvium arising from so many women & children while in bed in warm weather was at times very disagreeable but it was soon dispersed by sprinkling the dilated solution of C. of Zinc outside the sleeping Berths on both sides of the lower deck. The prevailing affection during the Passage was Diarrhoea, induced I consider by the salt Provisions, on putting the Patients afflicted with this complaint on Hospital diet and administering the Mist. Cretæ C. the Purging was soon checked. In a few of the old people it assumed a Dysenteric type, but on bringing the system under the influence of mercury the evacuations soon put on a healthy character. Two deaths occurred during the voyage, one from C. Pneumonia, the other from Inflammation of the Brain. The subject of Pneumonia was of a strumous Diathesis, and while recovering from a second, severe attack of Diarrhoea, inflammation of the Lungs set in, the disease was soon brought under control by means of counter-irritation and the Sol. Tart. Antimon etc but extreme prostration [supe...ssing] she was soon carried off in spite of stimulants of Camphor, Quinine, Wine etc. The Prisoner who died of Inflammation of the Brain had suffered very much from Syphilis and appeared of weak intellect; on admission into Hospital she only complained of pain in both groins, although on examination there was neither swelling nor discoloration of integuments, P. was small & quick, bowels open, T. moist. Delirium set in shortly after examination. Hair was cut short cold lotions applied to head, a blister to the nape of the neck and a Cathartic draught administered -she passed a restless night, talking incoherently and trying to get out of bed, ferocious delirium set in next day accompanied with pothing(sic) at the mouth, grinding of the Teeth, Pupils became dilated, this was soon followed by Coma from which she never rallied

Forty of the prisoners laboured under amenorrhea on embarkation, in 35 of the 40 the menses returned under the influence of the Compound alaetic Pill combined with the salt water Hip Bath. Two births occurred during the voyage both favourable. 2 Children died one 7 months old of Tabes Mesenteria [suffering?] an attack of Cholera while in Millbank Prison.- The other aged 7 months & 2 weeks of Infantile Remittent Fever after a few days illness.
